

Tishk
International University

Faculty of Applied Science
Medical Analysis Department

Course Descriptions

Biochemistry is a branch of chemistry which consists of carbohydrates, lipids, proteins, nucleic acids, enzymes, hormones and vitamins. This course aims to understand the general outcomes, after completion of this course students will be able to understand the General information about carbohydrates, lipids, proteins, nucleic acids and biological oxidation (anabolism and catabolism of foods).

MA 207 / GENERAL AND SYSTEMATIC
BIOCHEMISTRY